Region Chrome Demo

The header and footer are pinned regions that reserve space on every page. The flow content (this text) fills the remaining centre rectangle.

Layout regions use pin="top" and pin="bottom" to anchor chrome to the edges of the content area. Region height is determined naturally from its children. Full content width is used automatically.

The page attribute on a region controls which physical pages of this section the region appears on. Supported values: each, first, last, odd, even, or a numeric range like 1-3.

Spacer block — forces content to continue on subsequent pages to demonstrate that the header and footer repeat correctly.

You should see the header and footer on every page produced from this section. The "first page only" accent banner above the header should appear only on the first page.

Region pin="left" and pin="right" are schema-valid for forward compatibility but their implementation is deferred to a later phase.
